The Melrose Brothers, at the Pavilion, made good in every sense of the word. The work of these acrobats is a long way in advance of the usual acrobatic acts seen outside of the large circuses. Their somersaults from pedestal to pedestal and from shoulder to shoulder, are rarely seen, and it is quite probable that the style of double somersault that they do was never seen in Barre before. That their act was appreciated was evident from the fact that they had to give two curtain calls in response to the applause they received.

Sea stories in moving pictures are rare, and when good pictures, telling an interesting story with the old ocean as a background, are produced, they usually please.
